MARGHERIO NAMED VIRTUAL VISITING SCHOLAR FOR THE ARC NETWORK

Submitted by Ulrika S. O'brien on October 31, 2018 - 2:05pm

Cara Margherio, Assistant Director of CERSE, has been named Virtual Visiting Scholar for the ADVANCE Resource and Coordination (ARC) Network, a program funded through the National Science Foundation and administered by the Association for Women in Science. The Virtual Visiting Scholars program provides researchers across disciplines an opportunity to pursue meta-analysis, meta-synthesis, and big data curation on topics critical to STEM faculty equity. Cara's project is grounded in a critical race theory framework and centers the experiences of women faculty of color in a meta-synthesis of research on mentoring for women faculty in STEM.
